

Fuschia: A Local Success Story

For a business to survive a recession is commendable, but for it to thrive and expand in a climate of economic unrest, is a cause for great celebration.

Fuschia, the multi-award winning, Drogheda-based make-up brand, has just opened a bigger and better-looking premises.

The move to a larger premise within The Scotch Hall Shopping Centre, in Drogheda, has facilitated an expansion of Fuschia's already wide-ranging repertoire to now include a nail, skin and lash lounge.

Also, Fuschia's successful make-up school, which runs weekly professional make-up courses, has also been given a fancy new facelift (pictured above far right).

Fuschia was set up in 2005, by local couple Gillian Moore and Aidan Brady, who saw a gap in the market for a fresh, innovative and quality make-up company. Drogheda became its home, mineral make-up its speciality, as it quickly blossomed into Ireland's favourite make-up brand, winning countless awards and garnering considerable media recognition.

"Fuschia wouldn't be what it is today without the loyalty and support of the people of Drogheda", says Fuschia owner Gillian Moore, adding, "We are so grateful to everyone who has supported us, and we hope they continue to as we embark upon this exciting new phase".

Such is Fuschia's success that is now a dominant force in the beauty salon sector. Despite only launching itself to salons and spas in 2008, the brand is now stocked in over 150 premises across the country.

The future for Fuschia is very bright indeed.
